Let Google reviews show what makes your store special.

Boktor helps customers write reviews from their own answers.

Illustration only. Not real reviews or a promise of ratings.

Real customer experiences.
A way to discover your store.

Some customers choose a store by its Google reviews

Before visiting, people may want to know about the food or atmosphere.

"I saw this dish in a review. I wanted to try it."

"The reviews made it sound like a nice place to sit."

Example situations, not customer testimonials.

Think about how customers discover your own store.

Reviews show what people enjoy

Food, service, atmosphere, comfort.

Details from a real visit.

Food	The dish they tried and how it tasted
Service	How the team looked after them
Atmosphere	What the place felt like
Comfort	How they felt during their visit

Let customers describe the experience in their own words.

Examples of what a customer might mention.

Even happy customers can find writing a chore

Enjoying a visit and writing about it are two different things.

1 “I’m not sure what to write.”

2 “Putting it into words takes effort.”

3 “I’ll do it later.”
Then they forget.

Someone may want to share
but still struggle to get started.
